THERE ARE ONLY THREE WAYS:

TIME

FLAME &

CALCINATION
 (USING ONLY INERT HEAT)

EARTH BURIAL

The language recognizes the fact that earth interment, in the course of time, returns the body to the gracious earth which nurtured it during life. Earth interment and entombment have been practiced for countless centuries.

CREMATION

Clergymen refer to a body as "ashes" — presumably in recognition of the fact that from very ancient times man has disposed of his dead by the pyre, in modern times, by cremation. It accomplishes in a brief time what interment takes years to do.

CALCINATION "for the Utmost In Peace of Mind"

This new process, using only inert heat, is now available. It offers all the advantages of both burial and cremation. It eliminates the use of flame, as in interment but like cremation, it performs its essential task in a few hours, and makes the same notable economies.
